A Buffalo special of Monday says: By the the greatest in-door political meeting ever held in Buffalo assembled this evening to listen to Carl Schurz's speech on the political issues of the campaign. The meeting was under the auspices of the Cleveland Republican Club. There were no fice works or parades or efforts to arouse enthusiasm by means of that kind. Men and women came together to listen to Mr. Schurz, and for no other purpose. They filled the large Music Hall, and then packed it. Not only every seat but every aisle and corridor were filled until no more men could crowd into the house. The gallery was packed as closely as men could stand clear back to the wall. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Ansley Wilcox, president of the Executive Committee of the Cleveland Republican Club. In a brief speech he told of the work his Club was doing, and announced that he had assurances that at least 3.000 Republicans of Erre swarm, and for no other purpose. The find the large Mone Hall, and they all the second to the second of the second

He need B. Clafflin, Ripley Ropes, and W. H. Nichols, among the vice-presidents, were also observed.

William Everett, a son of Edward Everett, was received with much enthusiasm. He is a brisk, vigorous, and entertaining speaker, equally able to make an impressive political point or tell a clever story. Mr. Everett desired at the outset that it be known that he appeared before the Brooksiyn audience as a representative of the Massachusetts Independents or "mugwumps," as they had lately been called a "mugwump." That word was not a new one, he said. It was a good old Indian word, and occurred frequently in the Eliot Indian Bible. The Indian word "mugwump" meant a nobleman or a great man. [Applause.] The Republican party, he saud, had been on the verge of destruction many times. Again and again the people had almost overthrown it, and once they did overthrow it. Since 1868 the Republican in respect to the House everywhere and under all circumstances. Such Democrats as Eldridge, Cox. Woodward, Kerr, and Potter warmly disputed the existence of these ari-to-cratic and arbitrary privileges, but the Radical majority were inexorable, and Woods were intended the slightest distrespect to the House or interference with its sessions, duties, or prerogatives. He did not even know, as he testified on oath, that Porter was a member of the House. He did know, however, that Porter had foully slandered his race and nationality, and he had tried to get even by giving him a good drubbing.

In the course of the debate the most audience as a representative of the House were found in the course of the Fepublicans in respect to the House or interference with that Woods ever intended the slightest distances per to the House or prerogatives. He did know, however, that Porter was a member of the House agood drubbing.

In the course of the debate the most audience as a representative of the House even know, as a member of the House were believe has a good drubbing.

can party bad not been united on great questions of reform. The party leaders had shuffled and hesitated, and victory had perched on the "grand old partys" banner simply because the Independent vote had forced the leaders to indorse reforms which were suggested. The Independents had stuck by the old party from vear to year because up to the present time the leaders had not dared to nominate for a presidential candidate a man with a tanted character. At the last Republican National Convention the party leaders deliberately wasked away from the Independents and put up a candidate with a dishonored record. The Republican party must suffer the consequences. (Cheers. In was admitted to consequences.) (Cheers. In was not the consequences.) (Cheers. and always assumed to be the party of moral ideas. Mr. Bisme's record as Secretary of State zione showed him to be uttarly devoid of moral principles. No thoughtful citizen could vote for James G. Bisine on moral grounds. [Cries of "No, no."] Blaine's nomination forced the Democratic party to listen to the Independents' ery for reform and honesty, and, casting aside all lesser considerations and all factional preferences, the Democratic party selected for its standard-bearer a man whose name and record were synonyms for honesty and courage. Nobody doubts Grover Cleveland's integrity or inclination to serve the people faithfully.

At the mention of Cleveland's name there was an outburst of applause which lasted fully a minute. Horace E. Deming arose on the stage and proposed three cheers for Grover Cleveland, and the cheers were given with a tremendous shout. The speaker said that he was not frightened at the prospect of the Democrats getting into power. On the other hand, he thought it would be a good thing for the united nation, the North and the South together. [Great applause.] It was time to stop the growth of corruption in the administration of Government affairs. The Republican party had been steadily growing worse, until now it could beast of no superiority over the Democratic party. Incidentally the speaker alluded to Carl Schurz, and a proposition to give three cheers for Mr. Schurz next with a prompt and hearty response.

Horace E. Deming briefly reviewed Mr. Blaine's public record, and declared that the only exhibitions of "statesmanship" ever made by the ex-Secretary of State were disgraceful and humiliating to the United States. Blaine's "strong foreign policy" was simply a piece of bluster and braggadocio, and in each instance when it was applied it subjected this Government to the moriffication of being snubbed. Mr. Deming said that the one great question for the voters to settle in November was whether they were to have an honest man for Prevident or a dishonest one. For men

VII. "I never in my life recommended a loan to any one, or assumed any responsibility for another man's investment." Mr. Blaine wrote to Lee in August, 1882, when his own letters to Fisher and to J. A. Sanborn, of Maine, show that he guaranteed the investment of Sanborn and others in Little Rock bonds, and that was why he took back those bonds. He had to. In one of his letters to Sanborn he asks him to send him a full list of the bonds "for which I am guaranty."

Mr. Blaine, in short, never scruples to say "Nevet," whether the facts warrant it or not. That failing will be retorted, we trust, by a fremendous "Nevet!" from the American people on the 4th of November. the voters to settle in November was whether they were to have an honest man for President or a dishonest one. For men who believed Mr. Blaine dishonest to vote for him because he was the regular candi-date of the Republican party was "the very delirium of party madness and a de-gradation of manhood."

Nate Students for Cloveland.

A Kew Haven, Conn., special says: All the members of the Yale Law School belong to the Kent Club, a law school debating society, which is accustomed to meet once a greek and discuss current political and social topics. This evening an unusually large number of students assembled to express the opinions of the law school in regard to the too leading parties' presidential candidates. After some preliminary talk Mr. John Grag' Todd, of Harrisuurg. Texas, offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas the Republican National Convention, contrary to the protests of the best portions of the Republican party, has nominated for the presidency of the United States a man who has prostituted one of the highest offices in the National Government for personal gain, and who is the acknowledged friend of corrupt lobbyists; and whereas the National Democratic Convention has placed in nomination for the presidency of the United States Grover Cleveland, a man who has been tried in important public positions, and who has been found to be honest and fearless in official action and opposed to corrupt legislation:

Resolved. That the Kent Club of the Yale Law Department, recognizing the importance of having in the President a man whose previous official record has been above suspicion and who would perform the duties of his office with fidelity to the Constitution and bring into effect a thorough reformation of the civil service, does heartly endorse the nomination of Cieveland and Hendricks.
